A Note from Executive Director Kia Liszak

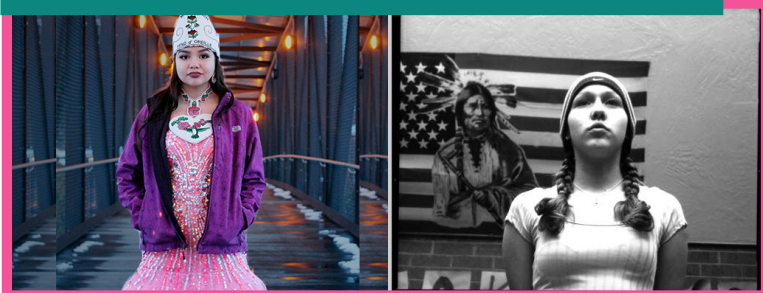

Dear amazing people of Missoula,

We have opened our doors in our new facility in downtown Missoula and it is time to celebrate. We celebrate you. Thank you for contributing your ideas, your love, and your passion to the ZACC. For the last ten years you have delighted us with your creativity, challenged us to grow with your questions and concerns, showed us your hearts and your potential, and inspired us to keep building and growing and changing to meet your needs and be better.

The ZACC continues to be a work in progress and always will be. Many things will be unfolding over the next few months, many more over the next few years, or lifetimes. It is a project we will continue to build together so we can make sure it reflects all of us. The new ZACC offers easier access with a downtown location on the bus line and an ADA compliant building. More studio space for artists, galleries for adults and youth, an interactive youth exploration center, an all ages performing arts center, multiple classrooms and conference space, a home for our fellow arts organizations, a music school and recording center, a large community print shop, a retail space for handmade creations, a free community art supply closet, and a paint-your-own-pottery studio. It is a space that belongs to you and that I hope will inspire and connect us, and amplify our community's unique voices for generations to come. Thank you for inspiring and supporting this vision. Can't wait to see all the things we create together inside these walls!

Love,
Kia
